ITEEA journals are intended to meet the needs of a variety of audiences and target those involved in the field of technology and engineering education with a special emphasis on Integrative STEM Education.

All journals are available to subscribers in electronic format. Technology and Engineering Teacher and The Elementary STEM Journal (formerly Children's Technology and Engineering) are available in print format as well. Educators, administrators, parents, and advocates of technological literacy will all find timely and valuable resources and information within each of ITEEA's journal offerings.

Technology and Engineering Teacher

Technology and Engineering Teacher (TET), ITEEA's flagship peer-reviewed journal, is published eight times per school year. In its 78th volume year, the journal is a useful and highly regarded tool for technology and engineering education—from elementary through high school teachers—to university students and university educators. Content includes activities, program articles, hot topics, regular features including classroom/lab safety, news, calendars, and important trends in technology and engineering education.

TET's target audience includes technology and engineering advocates; elementary, middle, and high school classroom teachers; graduate students; university faculty; administrators; department heads; state supervisors; guidance counselors; career educators; and museum educators. Every issue includes:

- Feature Articles (Peer-reviewed)
- Advancing Excellence in P-12 Engineering Education (ASEE)
- STEM Education News
- Classroom Challenges
- Safety Spotlight
- Solutions to help educators excel and more...

The Elementary STEM Journal

(formerly Children's Technology and Engineering)

The Elementary STEM Journal (ESJ) is the only peer-reviewed magazine devoted exclusively to elementary school technology and engineering education. For more than two decades, ESJ is a must-have dynamic, practical journal for anyone interested in technological literacy in Grades K-6.

Distributed four times a year, The Elementary STEM Journal is a theme-based journal that includes in every issue:

- Feature Articles, Including Peer-reviewed
- Feature Activities
- Literacy Strategies
- Career Connections
- Books to Briefs
- NASA's The Space Place
- and more...
